

HotTopics Appoints Daniel Warburton as Director of Partnerships

LONDON, 13/09/2023 — HotTopics, the leading global C-suite community, has appointed Daniel Warburton as its new Director of Partnerships, effective immediately.

Daniel will be responsible for delivering best-in-class client partnerships and campaigns, pushing the boundaries of service and creativity to drive client satisfaction and facilitate the continued growth of the global HotTopics community.

Daniel brings with him a track record of building C-suite communities, having previously co-founded CIO Watercooler, where he helped foster connections and knowledge sharing between C-suite executives and global technology partners. Prior to establishing the company in 2009, he held senior commercial roles at a number of CxO event organisations.

Philip Randerson, CEO and Founder of HotTopics, commented, “We are delighted to welcome Daniel Warburton to HotTopics as our new Director of Partnerships.

“Daniel’s extensive experience in building C-suite communities, combined with his passion for delivering value for our partners, aligns perfectly with our mission to support and empower global leaders to drive change.”

Daniel Warburton, Director of Partnerships at HotTopics, voiced his enthusiasm at the move, saying, “I am delighted to be part of HotTopics, a community revered for its dedication to promoting collaboration and innovation among top-tier leaders.

“My goal is to amplify our partnership initiatives and ensure our C-suite community receives unparalleled insights and connections.”

About HotTopics:

HotTopics is the leading C-suite community of over 17,000 global business leaders, representing a diverse range of companies and industry sectors across the world.

Anchored by our purpose - ‘Connecting leaders and inspiring action to build a better tomorrow’, our community provides a safe space for these leaders to support each other, share invaluable insights and stimulate impactful discourse. Through initiatives like TechGirl, the bi-annual competition for young women entering the technology industry, we embody our commitment to connect and inspire the next-generation, and build a brighter future for the business world.